The initiative included visits to educational institutions, an old-age home and an environmental location, providing students with meaningful exposure to real-world social challenges.

A. Orientation Programme at L.P. Savani School

At the beginning of the initiative, students attended an orientation programme at L.P. Savani School. The orientation introduced participants to the programme, its objectives, different activity domains and the responsibilities expected from them during their participation.

B. Special Care Domain – Visit to Karuna Mandir, Bardoli

As part of the Special Care Domain of You4Impact, the team visited Karuna Mandir, an old-age home located on the Bardoli–Vyara Highway, opposite Agasimata Trust Hospital, Bardoli.

During the visit, students had an opportunity to interact with elderly residents and understand their needs, experiences and challenges. The visit encouraged students to develop empathy, compassion and respect towards senior citizens and highlighted the importance of emotional support and care for elderly people.

C. Career & Leadership Domain – Educational Institution Visits

As part of the Career & Leadership Domain, the team visited the following educational institutions:

1. Shree U.K.R.K. Seva Samaj Sarvajanik Madhyamik School (Ten High School)

Students visited Tane High School as part of the career and leadership activities. The visit provided an opportunity to engage with school students and contribute towards their awareness and development through interactive activities.

2. Freedom Valley School (CBSE School)

The team also spent a day at Freedom Valley School, a CBSE-affiliated institution. The engagement provided students with an opportunity to interact with school students, share knowledge and encourage the development of leadership, confidence and career awareness.

D. Environmental Domain – Visit to Navdi Ovara, Surat

As part of the Environmental Domain of You4Impact, the team visited Navdi Ovara, Surat. The visit aimed to create awareness about environmental responsibility and the importance of protecting and maintaining our surroundings. This activity helped participants understand the significance of environmental conservation and encouraged a sense of responsibility towards sustainable practices.

The participation in You4Impact offered several valuable learning experiences to the students:

- Developed empathy, compassion and social responsibility through interaction with elderly residents.
- Enhanced communication and interpersonal skills through engagement with school students.
- Understood the importance of leadership, teamwork and community participation.

- Developed awareness about environmental conservation and sustainability.
- Gained practical exposure to social challenges and community development activities.
- Strengthened confidence, collaboration and a sense of civic responsibility.

The participation of VBTMCA students in the AIESEC – Jagriti Yatra You4Impact initiative was a meaningful experiential learning opportunity. Through visits to educational institutions, an old-age home and an environmental location, students gained practical insights into social responsibility, leadership and sustainable development.

The initiative successfully encouraged students to look beyond academic learning and become responsible, empathetic and socially conscious individuals. Such experiences contribute to the holistic development of students and reinforce the institution's commitment to value-based and experiential education.
